A Top Priority

SPRING 1995

Dr. Calvert N. Ellis '23
1904-1995

Former Juniata College president and longtime Huntingdon resident Dr. Calvert N. Ellis died on Friday, April 7, 1995 at his winter home in Sarasota, Florida. Dr. Ellis and his wife, Elizabeth Wertz Ellis '26, have been residents of the Brethren Village in Lancaster since 1987.

A well known educator, churchman and businessman, Dr. Ellis graduated from Juniata College in 1923 followed by successful completion of the B.A. degree from Princeton Theological Seminary, an M.A. degree from Princeton University and the Ph.D. degree from Yale University. Dr. Ellis has also received several honorary degrees in his lifetime, including a doctor of laws degree from Juniata College.

Dr. and Mrs. Ellis returned to Huntingdon in 1931 when Dr. Ellis accepted a faculty appointment at Juniata. Dr. Ellis chaired the faculty committee which introduced a curriculum which led to Juniata's accreditation by the Association of American Universities in 1937. In 1943 Dr. Ellis was named the college's seventh president, a position he held until his retirement in 1968.

Dr. Ellis guided Juniata College through many of our country's most turbulent years, the World War II years of the 40s, the Korean Conflict of the 50s, and the Civil Rights era of the 60s. Through the guidance of Dr. Ellis the college prospered as it received national recognition.

Dr. Ellis was also active in the national education arena. He served as a member of the Advisory Committee to the House of Representatives Committee on Education and Labor from 1944 to 1948. The committee proposed what was to become known as the GI Bill of Rights and later the federal college housing program for GIs.

Dr. Ellis chaired the Association of American Colleges in 1968, having served on and chaired the Commission on the Arts and the Commission on Legislation. In addition, he served on the Accrediting Commission of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and chaired more than two dozen evaluation teams. He served as chair of the association in 1966. Since his retirement in 1968 Dr. Ellis assisted a number of colleges and universities in updating their governance.

In addition to his academic pursuits, Dr. Ellis was manager of the D.M. Wertz Orchards in Waynesboro, Pa. from 1940 to 1961. He served as a member of the Boards of Directors of The First National Bank of Huntingdon and later, on the board of its successor bank, Penn Central National Bank (PCNB) from 1947 to 1987. Dr. Ellis chaired the PCNB board from 1977 to 1983.

An active church member, Dr. Ellis served as moderator of the Church of the Brethren Annual Conference in 1948. He served the church as a member of the General Board for nine years and spoke at dedication and anniversary ceremonies in many congregations.

Dr. Ellis is survived by his wife and two children, Elizabeth Anne (Ellis) Cherry, associate professor of history at Juniata College, and David Wertz Ellis, president and director of the Boston Museum of Science. He was preceded in death by a son, who died in infancy, and a brother, The Rev. Dr. John D. Ellis '28. ■

Juniata Enrollment

It's called The Funnel. At the top pour in the names of thousands of potential Juniata students. Then the funnel narrows to the thousand or so high school seniors who apply for admission, then narrows again to the hundreds who are accepted, until finally the funnel ends with a new entering class.

The Funnel is a prime topic at Juniata this year, as is the case at most colleges and universities. Administrative departments, faculty, alumni and student groups are busy reorganizing their admission-related efforts around the goal of increasing enrollment, which the college has officially identified as its top priority.

These efforts are aimed at getting as many prospective students as possible into the top of The Funnel and increasing efficiency in working with potential students all through the process.

Most students who begin at Juniata each fall have just graduated from high school, known in the admission game as de novo freshmen. According to Interim Director of Admission Michelle Bartol, Juniata's efforts to get them into The Funnel typically begin some 18 months before that autumn entry.

The process begins with identifying potential students, especially during their junior year of high school. "There are probably 30 different methods of doing that," Bartol says, "from high school students who inquire on their own to those our alumni identify for us, to names of qualified students we purchase from the college board based on junior year PSATs."

To contact them and identify more students, each fall seven members of the admission staff visit some 700 high schools for daytime visits or to participate in some 300 College Night programs. Alumni — usually recent graduates — also represent Juniata at College Nights, often as members of the formal organization called Juniata Admission Volunteers (JAV).

One goal at this stage is to encourage these juniors to visit Juniata, especially in the spring when the campus is alive with color and student activity. "It's very rare for a prospective student to decide about Juniata based on interaction with an admission counselor," Bartol says. "They are more influenced by meeting alumni, faculty, coaches and current students."

Some 1200 to 1300 individual visits by students and their families are scheduled throughout the year. Visitors can't usually combine a visit at Juniata with forays to other colleges because Huntingdon is not in close proximity to other colleges. But Juniata turns that to its advantage with a 3 to 4 hour program that includes opportunities to observe classes and talk individually with faculty, coaches and representatives of student organizations as well as admission staff members. "Juniata has one of the most comprehensive visitors programs I know of," Bartol says.

Through the fall and winter as applications start to arrive, the admission staff is busy keeping track of seriously interested high school seniors and responding to their questions and requests. Some 60 students a year are enrolled as early decision applicants in November. Of the thousand total applicants nearly 80% are likely to be accepted, partly because most students who have come this far along in The Funnel are already known to be qualified. By mid-December when acceptances begin to go out, the most concentrated effort to enroll students begins.

"In today's buyer's market when there are fewer eighteen year olds, there is more competition for them," Bartol says. "These students may have been accepted at several colleges. What's going to convert them into Juniata students? These are the really tense days."

The undecided students receive letters, phone calls, invitations for a campus overnight and more contacts with faculty and other appropriate Juniataans. They are reminded that among its other advantages, Juniata offers them two faculty advisors and a flexible program planning model in the Program of Emphasis, and that there are no fraternities or sororities dividing the community as a whole.

But Juniata is competing with many other schools: with Elizabethtown College, because it's about the same size and in the same geographical area; with Penn State because it's the state's flagship university and has campuses everywhere; with colleges like Muhlenberg, Ursinus, Allegheny, Franklin and Marshall because they also have strong science programs; with Dickinson and Gettysburg for those who want broad-based liberal arts education; and with state-aided institutions like Bloomsburg and Indiana on the basis of price.

It is also in this February-to-May period that financial aid becomes a serious matter. Out of every 1000 admission applicants some six to seven hundred apply for some form of financial aid. Average packages include scholarships or grants (about 65% of the total amount), loans (25%) and the rest in campus job income.

Aid is increasingly important, and the amount Juniata offers has increased dramatically in the last five years, as it has at other schools. At this point in The Funnel, it becomes a tool to make enrollment at Juniata possible for students who really want to attend the college.

"Financial aid is almost never the determiner that causes a student to switch from their first choice college to their second," according to Director of Student Financial Planning Randall S. Rennell. "More often, if Juniata is truly their first choice but they've gotten a better aid package at another school, they'll come to us to see if we can't get ours closer. We tend then to be an enabler, the confirmation of their choice rather than an agent of change."

By May and June most enrollees have made their $200 deposit, and the next entering class of de novo freshmen is set. At the same time as all this is going on, efforts are made to attract and accommodate those in the other categories of entering students: transfers from other institutions, international students, and those who enroll through the Program for Area Residents (PAR) for nontraditional students. Meanwhile, The Funnel for the class that will enter the following year is already filling up.

But are there as many qualified students coming into

The Funnel as there could and should be? Are efforts all through The Funnel as organized and responsive as they might be? Or are there holes in The Funnel, with potential Juniata students being lost?

The Juniata community is systematically addressing these questions now, as institutional efforts are more and more focused on increasing enrollment. "It's very clear that Juniata College as it is now—with the same faculty, buildings and various support systems—can comfortably handle about 1200 students. Perhaps as many as 1300 under unusual circumstances, without basic increases in capital or operating expenditures," says Donald D. Moyer, Vice President for Advancement and Marketing.

"So our natural quantitative goal is to maintain a student body of between 1100 and 1200," he says. "That means we need to recruit annually from all sources about 350 new students a year, given the same retention rate we have now." Currently Juniata has about 1050 students with no prospect that competition for new students will diminish any time soon.

In 1993 Juniata's Board of Trustees appointed an Admission Task Force that investigated in particular how Juniata was physically set up to handle admission, and compared this with the facilities and technology employed by a similar college. This group of trustees, faculty, administrators and alumni presented eight specific recommendations to the Trustees meeting in the spring of 1994, and two more were added by the trustees themselves.

"It became clear at this meeting that the members of the Board of Trustees were getting increasingly involved personally in the idea that enrollment was

New Dean of Enrollment Named

David Hawsey

David Hawsey, dean of admissions and enrollment management at Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Wash., has been named dean of enrollment at Juniata College. Mr. Hawsey's appointment was announced by Dr. Robert W. Neff, president of the college.

Mr. Hawsey, who began his duties at Juniata on April 10, will provide leadership and direction to the newly reorganized student enrollment program. The enrollment program at Juniata includes supervision of all areas of student recruitment, including Admission and Student Financial Planning, in addition to management support in the areas of athletic recruiting and international recruiting.

"We are indeed fortunate to have a professional of David Hawsey's caliber overseeing our enrollment strategies at Juniata," said President Neff. "By combining the offices of Admission and Financial Planning," he added, "we feel we have the necessary organizational structure to bring added strength to our enrollment picture at Juniata College."

The dean of enrollment reports to Donald D. Moyer, Vice President of College Advancement and Marketing at Juniata. In addition to the enrollment function, Mr. Moyer supervises college communications, marketing, development, planned giving, corporate and foundation relations and alumni relations.

Mr. Hawsey received a bachelor's degree in humanities and education and an M.B.A. in marketing management and marketing information systems from Drexel University. He also served as a graduate research assistant at the College of Business and Administration at Drexel.

Mr. Hawsey has been associated with Pacific Lutheran University since 1992. As the dean of admission and enrollment management he carried varied responsibilities in admission, financial aid, marketing management, information systems management, and advising/assessment and registration.

In recruiting students to undergraduate, graduate, transfer, adult and professional programs at Pacific Lutheran, Mr. Hawsey's strategies increased freshman deposits by 12 percent and transfer enrollment by 14 percent. His program raised scholastic aptitude test scores by 30 points and increased Pacific Lutheran's multicultural representation from 9 percent to 14 percent.

Mr. Hawsey served as director of undergraduate admissions at Drexel University from 1989 to 1992. While at Drexel he was also an adjunct assistant professor of marketing management.

From 1988 to 1989, Mr. Hawsey worked as an analyst and technical writer at Shared Medical Systems, Inc. in Malvern, Pa. He served as marketing communications specialist at GPU Nuclear Corporation of Middletown, Pa. from 1984 to 1987.

Mr. Hawsey served in the United States Navy for four years, from 1978 to 1982, in the area of operations and communications at the Naval Air Station at Whidbey Island, Washington. ■

Juniata's number one priority," Mr. Moyer observes.

President Neff and his administrative officers began implementing the recommendations immediately. The most visible result will be an expanded Admission House, which will include the student financial planning office, which is currently located in Founders Hall. The new Enrollment House will be equipped with the new technology that many of Juniata's competitors already employ.

The goal is to organize information-gathering and response efforts more efficiently, and provide a friendly atmosphere for students and their parents, especially when they visit the campus. Mr. Moyer expects construction to begin by May and be completed by December 1995. "Then we will have contemporary, 100% technologically up-to-date quarters for both admission and student financial planning."

That up-to-date technology includes the two high-speed, high quality printers that were acquired right away and are already in use. "We start at the top of The Funnel with direct mail pieces sent to prospective students," Mr. Moyer explains. "Those pieces must have a high quality appearance. Then when we hear back, we need to respond very quickly to inquiries. In this competitive environment, response time is critical, all the way down the funnel."

Other technological adjustments range from providing coaches computer access to the admission data base (which has now been done) to creating around-the-clock telephone access to the Enrollment House, which has become part of a wider effort to update Juniata's antiquated telephone system and provide access to "information highway" computer technology.

But it soon became clear that buildings and technology weren't enough in themselves. Organization and communication became key concerns, especially in a fast-moving process that includes faculty, coaches, students, alumni and such administrative departments as student housing, as well as admission and financial aid. Separate efforts to serve international, transfer and PAR prospective students also require more systematic cooperation.

"We determined that enrollment as a whole needed more comprehensive attention and central management," Mr. Moyer recounts. "In this competitive environment when the process is so complex and involves so much coordination on a timely basis, we decided that we needed a Dean of Enrollment to supervise our efforts to obtain and retain a diversified student body."

The search for a Dean of Enrollment has been successfully concluded (see sidebar story). "Ideally by the beginning of the new recruiting cycle—the new Funnel for the classes that will enter in 1996 and 1997, we'll have in place the whole new organizational structure," Mr. Moyer says, "and by the end of 1995 it will be housed in one location."

Along with these efforts, a continuing series of "Enrollment Roundtables" of administrators and other members of the Juniata community has developed other ideas for improving the admission process. "We've identified some holes in The Funnel which we feel we can remedy," Mr. Moyer says, "and we probably wouldn't have found them without this kind of open, face-to-face conversation."

One goal is to respond to the needs and questions of individual candidates more promptly and specifically. "We need to get a scholarship aid package into the hands of desired students as high in The Funnel as possible, to encourage more early admissions," Mr. Moyer says.

"We need close cooperation and timely response from housing, the registrar's office and the faculty to answer the student's questions — 'If I come to Juniata, what kind of housing will I have? What kind of course work will be pertinent to my first year curriculum?'"

More than trustees and administrators are involved in the enrollment effort at Juniata College. Faculty are developing ideas for recruiting students to their disciplines. Enrollment is a key consideration in broader research and planning underway through the Strategic Planning Committee, which is looking at academic curriculum, physical property and college services.

Mr. Moyer urges alumni as well as current students, parents and friends of the college to continue and accelerate their efforts to identify potential Juniata students. "The more people who are attuned to what we're looking for and who can encourage students to come and visit and apply as we go through The Funnel process, the more likely we are to reach our goal," he notes.

"Alumni have a feel for good prospects who have the qualities and characteristics that will succeed at Juniata," Mr. Moyer says. "They should identify prospects to us, and tell us as much as they can about them — their class rank, their area of interest, for example. More than that, alumni should engage personally with these students, their parents, and high school guidance counselors.

"We have hard data that shows one compelling pattern—the nature of admission is changing rapidly," Moyer warns. "Most schools are no longer winnowing down from a large number, but competing for a diminishing pool of qualified applicants.

"For this year we've approved a goal of reaching 340 new students for next fall, and for the following year we will strive to hit 350 and maintain or exceed that level," Moyer says. "To achieve that, it can't be handed off to a small group of people professionally identified as admission personnel. It must be a goal that is owned by the whole Juniata community and has a direct effect on the day to day and week to week and month to month work of everyone.

"If we get the systematic engagement of all the interested parties," he says, "it's very realistic to project those kinds of goals. If we do not get that kind of engagement, odds are there will be a great many students who the professionals will never even hear about." ■

Success through Academic Support

"Each year, we admit about 30 students who we feel show promise, but need extra academic support in the beginning of their freshman year," explains Mary Taylor, Assistant Dean and Director of Academic Support Services. "Perhaps their class rank is pretty low, or their SAT scores aren't where we like to see them. Perhaps a letter of recommendation suggests they aren't academically motivated, or something comes up in an interview."

These are called "conditionally admitted students," and the conditions they must fulfill to stay at Juniata are clearly spelled out: they must successfully complete the Baldrige Reading Program and the Freshman Seminar course.

The reading program is a 3 week course that emphasizes reading rate and comprehension. The Freshman Seminar is a one hour a week non-credit class that conditional students take in addition to their regular course load throughout the fall semester.

"The Freshman Seminar course covers basic skills necessary for success in college: note-taking, dealing with a volume of reading they typically aren't used to, test-taking and dealing with test anxiety, and time-management," Ms. Taylor says. "We also emphasize analytical skills like critical thinking and problem solving." Besides acquiring skills, students confront questions of motivation and direction. "Another goal of the seminar is to help these students gain a sense of academic purpose. If you don't have goals and you're not really sure what you're doing, you won't work as hard, you won't persevere."

Seminar students write a short paper on why they came to college, and take an interest inventory, eventually identifying potential fields of study. This becomes a guide to the courses they select for the spring term. Each student has three individual conferences during the semester, with a follow-up conference in the spring.

Both courses may have application beyond the conditionally admitted student program. The Baldrige reading course is open to all students when it repeats once each fall, and the college is discussing an expanded version of the Freshman Seminar as a requirement for all first year students.

"We really want these students to succeed—that's the purpose of this program," Taylor says. "Some of them realize right away how helpful this is. But most of them eventually recognize its value." ■

Juniata Peace Chapel in Oscar Film

Members of the Juniata College and Huntingdon communities paid particular attention to the recent Academy Awards program telecast on Monday, March 27.

The Oscar nominated film "Maya Lin: A Strong Clear Vision" includes Ms. Lin's 1989 visit to Huntingdon for the dedication of the Elizabeth Evans Baker Peace Chapel at Juniata. The film was nominated, and in fact won, the Academy Award for Best Achievement in a Feature Documentary.

The open air structure was designed by Ms. Lin, who also designed the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C.

According to the film's producer, Freida Lee Mock, the scenes shot at Juniata College play an important role in the film. "The ten minute segment shows scenes of the Peace Chapel of course, but more importantly, it shows the only keynote address ever presented by Maya Lin," Mock said.

The segment also contains scenes showing Juniata president Robert W. Neff's introduction of Ms. Lin and, in one of the more poignant moments in the film, the presentation made to Ms. Lin by representatives of the Mount Union Post 23, Veterans of the Vietnam War.

According to the film's synopsis, "Using Maya Lin's first-person account, the film explores, in a decade of work, the creative and political process by which Ms. Lin conceives and develops these monumental projects: the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C.; the Civil Rights Memorial in Montgomery, Alabama; the Peace Chapel at Juniata College in Pennsylvania; the Women's Table at Yale University; and the Park Presidio environmental project in San Francisco."

The Elizabeth Evans Baker Peace

Chapel, designed by Maya Lin in 1988 and constructed in 1989, is located in the Baker-Henry Nature Preserve, just east of the Juniata campus. The structure, like many of Ms. Lin's designs is remarkable in its simplicity, yet very powerful and moving.

The Peace Chapel consists of a series of salt and pepper granite stones which rise from the earth on a grassy knoll to form a circle designed for group meditation. Within the stones, each extending above ground level, is a concave impression in the earth.

A second site, several hundred yards from the first, is located in a small grove of trees on a knoll higher in elevation than the larger circle of stones. It is here that Ms. Lin intended individual meditation to occur.

The Peace Chapel has been used by members of the Juniata College and Huntingdon communities for small group gatherings, regular Juniata College classes, community worship services, and simple, quiet moments of reflection.

Ms. Lin, whose parents fled China in 1948, comes from an artistically talented family. Her father, Henry Lin, was dean of the School of Fine Arts at Ohio University (Athens). Her mother is a poet and professor of Oriental and English literature at the university.

It was at Ohio University that Professor Lin established a close friendship with John and Elizabeth Baker. Mr. Baker served as president of Ohio University from 1945 to 1961. Mr. Baker, a 1917 graduate of Juniata College, has served on the Juniata College Board of Trustees since 1936.

The vision for the non-denominational, open air chapel at Juniata was that of Elizabeth Baker. Mrs. Baker, who commissioned the design and construction of the Peace Chapel in 1988, was, in her life, an ardent spokesperson for reason in the proliferation of nuclear power and weaponry. Following her death in 1990, her passion for peace continues to be felt in what she has left behind in the Peace Chapel and the Baker Peace Institute at Juniata College. ■

Juniata's Student Ambassadors

Juniata College has tapped into the talents and energy of its student body through a Student Ambassadors program. The program consists of students who attend development, admission and alumni events and work as representatives of the college.

Juniata College faculty nominate students who they believe would be good representatives of the college. In the first year of the program, faculty nominated 54 students. The nominees submit applications if they are interested in the position and after an interview and selection process Juniata College Ambassadors are named. Students are chosen according to one criteria. Ambassadors must be the best possible representatives of Juniata College.

Ambassadors serve a number of purposes. Not only do they act as a bridge between Juniata alumni and the students, but they also answer any questions that the alumni may have concerning the college, campus life, or events. Ambassadors interact with alumni at campaign functions, Homecoming, alumni weekend, alumni council meetings and fundraising events.

Juniata College is among the few colleges in the nation that have a program such as this. Of the 3500 colleges and universities in the United States only about 200 have formally organized student ambassadors. ■

South Residence Hall Recovers from Fire

Nearly 100 of the 145 students displaced by a fire in South Hall on January 14 were able to return to their rooms two weeks later. The fire, which gutted one room on the southeast corner of the building and left several others heavily damaged by smoke, forced the closure of the short hall section of the building for the entire semester.

The fire was reportedly started when a candle was left unattended by one of the students who had returned early for the start of the spring semester. "The quick response by Huntingdon police and firefighters averted what easily could have been a much more serious situation," said Robert W. Neff, president of Juniata College. "These volunteer firefighters who risk their lives to fight fires deserve our thanks and appreciation."

President Neff also expressed appreciation to junior Deb Nardone, a resident assistant in South, who alertly responded to the initial alarm. "She followed procedures to the letter," President Neff noted, "to swiftly evacuate the building of the 15 students in the residence hall at the time of the fire."

In reflecting on the community response to the fire President Neff said, "I'm struck by the spirit of cooperation exhibited by members of our staff and also by the outpouring of offers of assistance that came from faculty, staff and members of the Huntingdon community. Offers to house students, to provide food and clothing and to provide support and comfort came from throughout our community."

Students displaced for the entire semester have taken up residence in other vacant rooms on campus. The college also reopened Tussey Hall, which had been closed for future renovation.

Classes for the spring semester began as scheduled. ■

Board Names Six New Trustees in '94

In October, the Juniata College Board of Trustees welcomed six new members. The new trustees are Donald Detwiler of Hollidaysburg, Pa., Janice Glass Kensinger of Hummelstown, Pa., Karl Kindig of Abingdon, Va., Delbert McQuaide of Centre Hall, Pa., Margaret Moore of Washington, D.C., and Charles Pearson of State College, Pa.

Donald Detwiler received his bachelor of science degree in economics from Juniata College in 1964 and has completed additional studies in computer programming and management at Penn State University. Upon graduation from Juniata, he began his career at New Enterprise Stone & Lime Company and is now the president and chief executive officer.

Currently, Mr. Detwiler serves on the Juniata College President's Development Council.

Janice Glass Kensinger graduated from Juniata College in 1974 with a bachelor of science degree in sociology. Appointed to the Board in 1994 as a church representative, Mrs. Kensinger is the associate district executive of the Church of the Brethren Atlantic Northeast District.

Mrs. Kensinger has combined her dedication to the church and Juniata College by serving on the Church-College Relations Council. As an alumna, she has been a reunion coordinator and was featured as a speaker at the annual May Day Breakfast. She was Juniata's first "May Day Woman of the Year."

Karl Kindig, selected by the National Alumni Association to be the Alumni Council representative to the Board, graduated from Juniata in 1972. In 1975, the Root-Tilden Scholar earned his doctor of law degree from New York University. Mr. Kindig is currently the president of the Pittston Company.

Mr. Kindig has served his alma mater as a Juniata Admission Volunteer, a member-at-large for the Alumni Council, and as a member of the President's Development Council.

Delbert McQuaide received his bachelor of arts degree in history from Juniata College in 1958. A Root-Tilden Scholar, he earned his law degree at New York University in 1961. He

$700,000 Needed for Kresge Challenge

Juniata College has been notified by the trustees of The Kresge Foundation that the college has been awarded a $600,000 challenge grant toward the renovation of Cloister Hall.

The Kresge grant will be used to challenge donors and assist the college in raising the remaining $1.7 million of the $4.25 million Educational Facilities Enhancement component of the campaign. Including the Kresge commitment, the college has already secured over $2.5 million toward the goal. The project includes residence hall renovation and improvements in instructional technology.

The renovation of the college's oldest and most cherished student residence facility is part of the college's $30 million Transformations Campaign.

In order to receive the $600,000 Kresge Foundation Challenge Grant for the Cloister project the college must raise the full $4.25 million by September 1995. ■

80th Annual Bailey Oratorical Competition Tie for First Place

Two Juniata College students shared first place honors in the Thomas F. Bailey Oratorical Contest held in Ellis Hall on the Juniata campus on February 20.

The co-winners were Jane Croyle, a senior communications and conflict resolution major from Petersburg, and senior Steve McElroy, a pre-medicine major from Bedford.

Seven Juniata students competed for the $1500 in prize money and the honor of having their name placed on the coveted Bailey Award Trophy.

Participants in this year's contest addressed the question: "Celebrate Your Sense of Commitment to the Future: What Do We Have To Offer the Next Generation?"

In Steve McElroy's winning speech, titled "The Wisdom of Silence," McElroy discussed the horror of the Dachau concentration camp. McElroy visited Dachau last summer while on a Juniata College Choir Tour trip to Europe.

In her winning presentation, titled "As Just One Person I Can Believe in the Next Generation," Jane Croyle discussed what she could do to make a difference to the next generation.

Other winners in the contest were second place finisher Simon Corby, an international student from England; and sophomore communications major Matthew DiLauri of Florham Park, New Jersey, who placed third.

Other finalists included sophomore Purvi Shah of Ebensburg, freshman Julie Rosensteel of Mount Union and senior Melissa Williams of Bellwood.

The final competition was judged by attorney Paul E. Baker of Harrisburg, retired state representative Samuel Hayes of Tyrone, and Pamela Babick of Clearfield. Baker and Babick are graduates of Juniata College.

The original Bailey Oratorical Award was established in 1915 by the Honorable Thomas F. Bailey, who served as president judge of Huntingdon County from 1916 to 1936.

Beginning with the early history of Juniata, the oratorical contest was a prestigious event with a prize of $50 awarded to the winner. Today, an enhanced endowment contribution by Judge Bailey's son-in-law, Colonel Sedgley Thornbury, makes possible the first place prize of $500, the second place award of $300, and the third place prize of $200. In addition, the name of the winner is permanently inscribed on an antique loving cup presented by Colonel Thornbury's son, Thomas Bailey Thornbury. ■

Athletics and Enrollment Technology Upgrades Cement the Commitment

Nearly 35 percent of Juniata students participate in one of the school's 15 current varsity sports.

New wiring for computer hookups, office space re-allocations and state-of-the-art computer work stations in the Kennedy Sports+Rec Center are physical signs of the vital connection between the Juniata College athletic department and the office of admission. These ongoing improvements help to cement the commitment of the coaching staff to the enrollment process.

Larry Bock, volleyball coach and coordinator of athletic recruiting for part-time coaches, is pleased with the changes and believes they reinforce the positive relationship between athletics and the admission operation.

"Our coaching staff is certainly comfortable with how we've worked with the admission office in the past," Bock explains. "However, continuing technology changes will allow us to improve communications and deal with prospective student-athletes in an even more efficient manner. The more closely the two departments work together, the better Juniata College can serve high school prospects and their families."

The computer upgrades also allow individual coaches to handle correspondence and personal contact with even more prospective student-athletes. In fact, this year alone, the Juniata football recruiting base nearly doubled to approximately 3,000 high school seniors at one point. Much of that gain can be attributed to the use of improving computer technology.

"While we still use certain paper files, we're doing more and more on computer," assistant football coach Kevin Burke says. "The technology allows us to introduce Juniata College and our football program to a large number of prospective students. Then as the pool narrows to more serious prospects, we can obtain almost instant updates on application status, campus contacts and other important information.

"If, for example, a prospective student calls the admission office with a question. That conversation will be noted on the computer file of the prospective student. The coach can see that notation on the computer file prior to his or her next contact with the recruit, and address any issues that are appropriate."

The improved computer links between the athletic department and the admission office also assist with coordination of campus visits — allowing for confirmation of dates and scheduling of activities in a quick and efficient manner. Athletics and admission work together on over 200 campus visits a year. It is a successful partnership as nearly 35 percent of current Juniata students participate in one of the school's 15 current varsity sports. According to Bock, only 38 men and 83 women in the 1994-95 freshman class did not indicate an interest in a varsity sport on their Juniata application for admission.

"We know that athletics play an important role in recruiting many of our students," Bock says. "We understand that our department must continue to be a leader, along with the admission office, in responding to the enrollment challenges of the institution. While the technology changes we've seen, and will continue to see, are important to our efforts, the commitment of our coaching staff will remain a crucial variable. We're fortunate to have a dedicated group of coaches."

Bill Berrier, longtime member of the Juniata athletic department and its director since 1977, agrees. "I believe we have one of the best coaching staffs that I've seen in my years at Juniata," says Berrier, who just completed his 27th season as head baseball coach. "We understand that to be successful we must work together as a staff and work closely as a department with admission. We must be dedicated to our role in the enrollment process and in the student service function of the college."

The department recently increased its role in the enrollment strategy with the addition of women's soccer as a varsity sport last fall. According to Berrier, it was a natural response to the demand of a prospective student market where soccer is one of the fastest growing sports at the high school level. The Juniata women's soccer program should approach the 30-player mark on its roster next fall.

Another women's sport that has played an important role in the college's commitment to enrollment issues is field hockey. Third-year head coach Jill La Point and former assistant Tish Maclay worked to build the roster from 17 players in 1992 to over 30 last fall. Along with a successful varsity offering, Juniata now boasts a strong junior varsity field hockey program as well.

"The deeper roster is an advantage to the school because it gives more student-athletes an opportunity to compete," La Point says. "As a coach, I like the situation because it allows for better practice situations. The junior varsity schedule also provides more players with game experience. The JV opportunity leads to future varsity playing time for some while it simply allows another year or two of organized play for others."

Berrier points to the NCAA Division III philosophy as strong motivation to continue a dedicated relationship between athletics, the admission office and the entire campus community. He relates, "The Division III philosophy places special importance on the impact of athletics on participants and emphasis on the internal constituency of students, alumni and institutional personnel. I believe that this can be seen in the role of athletics at Juniata College." ■

Athletic Staff Aligns for the Future

In support of Juniata's growing commitment to wellness programming for its students and staff, William F. Berrier '60, athletic director since 1977, has been named coordinator of intramurals and athletic events. Berrier, who will remain as head baseball coach, will begin the new assignment on July 1.

Lawrence R. Bock, head volleyball coach and coordinator of athletic recruiting, has been named athletic director effective July 1. Bock will remain as head women's volleyball coach. The announcements were made by Dr. Robert J. Hatala, provost and vice president for student development.

"Bill Berrier has dedicated much of his life to Juniata College and its athletic department," Dr. Hatala said. "He offers the experience and professionalism to ensure a smooth transition for Larry Bock and will provide energy for the intramural and wellness areas of the college."

Bock, a full-time member of the Juniata administration since 1983, recently completed his 18th season as women's volleyball coach and his sixth year with the men's program. He is a 1972 graduate of Penn State University.

Berrier joined the Juniata staff in 1961 as assistant dean of men. He was head wrestling coach from 1962-92, and has been the head baseball coach since 1969. He was also an assistant football coach during his tenure.

As athletic director, Berrier has played an active role in many campus committees and has helped host numerous events in the Kennedy Sports+Rec Center, including the 1993 NCAA Division III Women's Volleyball Championship. He has also served committee appointments within the leadership structure of the Eastern Intercollegiate Volleyball Association and Middle Atlantic Conference, recently completing terms as vice president and president of the MAC.

In another athletic department personnel change, Tom Gibboney '78, the head football coach at Huntingdon Area High School for the past nine years, has been named Juniata's 18th head football coach. Gibboney takes over for Chris Coller '85, who resigned in April to pursue business opportunities outside of athletics.

"We believe this is a very positive step for our athletic department, football program and institution," Dr. Hatala said about Gibboney's appointment. "Tom is a proven winner who has a strong connection to the college, local community and region."

The 39-year old Gibboney, who led Huntingdon to a 60-32-6 record during his tenure, is no stranger to Juniata athletics. He began his coaching career in 1980-81 as receivers coach and head junior varsity football coach for Juniata under head coach Rob Ash. Gibboney later served a two-year stint in 1990-91 as assistant men's volleyball coach for Bock. As an undergraduate, Gibboney lettered five times in football and baseball, earning the College's highest men's athletic honor when he received the Stanford Mickle Award as a senior. ■

Volleyball Star Receives National Recognition

Christy Orndorff '95 of Bonneauville, Pa., was featured in the "Faces In the Crowd" section of the March 6 edition of Sports Illustrated. The Delone Catholic High School product recently concluded a standout career for the Juniata women's volleyball program.

Orndorff, a 5'5" outside hitter, was chosen for the Sports Illustrated feature after receiving first-team Division III All-America honors from the American Volleyball Coaches Association (AVCA) for the fourth straight year. Orndorff is the first Division III player to be honored by the AVCA as a first-team pick after all four years of her collegiate career.

She is only the third NCAA women's volleyball player overall to achieve this level of recognition from the AVCA.

"On a national perspective, not many 5'5" players can do what Christy did," veteran Juniata coach Larry Bock said. "As successful as she was, individual stats meant very little to her. Christy was completely team oriented."

Juniata was third in the NCAA Division III Women's

Christy Orndorff

Volleyball Championships last December as the Eagles finished Orndorff's senior season with a 37-9 record. Orndorff helped #2-ranked Juniata recover from a 2-3 semifinal upset loss to Wisconsin-Oshkosh when she nailed a weekend-high 23 kills to lead the Eagles past host Ithaca in the third place match.

Orndorff led the team last fall with 513 kills and was second in digs with 349. She is the school record-holder in career digs with 1,488. She is second in Juniata history for career kills (1,962) and attacks (4,204), third for service aces (308) and fifth for hitting percentage (.307).

"Obviously Christy got here and was a good player immediately," Bock said of Orndorff's early career at Juniata. "She'd been well trained, was already very skilled and had played volleyball since the fifth grade."

"As for her four years at Juniata, by the numbers, Christy got better every year," Bock added. "Realistically, you expect people to reach a plateau, but she didn't. That improvement is a tribute to her."

Bock also pointed to the strong relationship between Orndorff and four-year teammate Heather Blough '95 of Johnstown (Richland HS), a three-time All-America pick at setter and the holder of the Division III record for career assists (6,355).

"Those two were a package," Bock said of Orndorff and Blough. "They were tough competitors and elevated each other constantly."

Orndorff, a pre-physical therapy major and member of the dean's list last fall, is the second Juniata student-athlete to be featured in "Faces in the Crowd" over the past three years. Annette Hoffman '93, the school's basketball career scoring leader, appeared in the March 8, 1993 edition of Sports Illustrated. ■

How would you like a chance to tell everyone exactly what to do?

You can do that with a Will. Through your Will, you can dictate how your estate is to be distributed at your death.

If you don't have a Will, your estate will be settled according to your state's impersonal laws of descent and distribution... with no regard for what you may have in mind.

We have a free booklet that can answer many of the questions you may have about Wills: "Your Will, Your Way... Why and How." This comprehensive publication explains why you need a Will, how to prepare to meet with your legal advisor, what items to include in your Will, and more. For your free copy (of course, without obligation), simply contact Ron Wyrick, Director of Planned Giving, Juniata College.

English, died July 29, 1994. Jan had been employed in the Juniata College bookstore from February 14, 1986 to August 9, 1993. Jan lived her simple Brethren faith by celebrating life. She had many interests: gardening; hiking; photography; and always, her family. She supported the Brethren Heifer Project and the local food co-op. We remember her helping little children learn in Head Start and Sunday School and college students buy the right supplies in the Book Store. Jan was there with food and baked goods and a listening ear when her husband, Bill, had his students in their home. Many JC alumni visited and counted her as friend. We miss her!

WILLIAM H. KEAGLE, former art instructor, of Altoona, PA, died on September 21, 1994.

THE REVEREND JOEL THOMPSON, Oak Park, IL, husband of Janine (Everhart) Katonah, a member of the class of 1969 and former president of the National Alumni Association. Rev. Thompson was aboard USAir Flight 427 which crashed near Pittsburgh on September 8.

Reunion '95 promises to be a magnificent event. Once again, alumni graduating in the years 1945, 1950, 1955, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975, 1980, 1985, and 1990 will celebrate the anniversary of their graduation by reminiscing and celebrating with their classmates while enjoying a variety of activities. You may have noticed that we've changed the name slightly — to "ALUMNI WEEKEND". Alumni of every year are encouraged to return to campus for the festivities.

Begin your Alumni Weekend by attending your preference of classes being offered Thursday afternoon through Saturday morning. The fun continues with the traditional class parties on Friday evening, followed by Mountain Day festivities on Saturday and the Madrigal Dinner on Saturday evening. Madrigal is a student dinner, in early December, where students come in their best dress, are served by faculty and staff, sing Christmas carols, and finish with "The Twelve Days of Christmas" by candlelight. Each reunion class will be asked to portray a day of the "Twelve Days" using their most active imagination! The weekend is guaranteed to be fun and filled with much to do.
